

Script for Acne Consultation

CLIENT QUESTIONNAIRE

Review the Client Questionnaire and check for any of the following that you will want to address during the consultation:

- Use of medications or any medical history that could be an issue in clearing their skin.
- Lifestyle considerations that you need to address when going over the Lifestyle Choices Affecting Acne document.
- Regularly consumed foods that may exacerbate their acne when going over the Food and Supplements Affecting Acne document.
- Skincare products currently being used (especially makeup) that may contain pore-clogging ingredients when going over the Pore Clogging Ingredients document.
- Recent treatments or current prescription topicals that could interfere with their initial treatment appointment. (Refer to the For The Esthetician – Medications and Drugs document)
- Accutane/Isotretinoin in the last 30 days: the client needs to wait at least 30 days after stopping the medication before you can perform a treatment or begin home care actives.
- Benzoyl peroxide use: ask if it was in a cleanser or a leave-on product. If it was in a leave-on product, identify if it was used all over the face or as a spot treatment, and when it was last used.
 - If it was used only as a cleanser or a spot treatment, they will need to do the timed schedule for the Advanced Acne Med.
 - If currently using all over the face, they won't have to use the timed schedule for the Advanced Acne Med provided you are not increasing the strength.
 - If currently using it all over the face and you will be increasing the strength, they will need to do the timed schedule for the Advanced Acne Med.
- Topical allergies to any ingredients: discuss the details with them to determine if they will need to avoid any Face Reality treatments or products. Add this information to their Acne Client Treatment Notes.

EDUCATE YOUR CLIENT

- Let the client know that consistently doing their home care routine using Face Reality products is crucial and will account for 80% of their clearing progress. Why? The products are acne-safe formulations and do not have any pore-clogging ingredients. Our adaptive approach by starting actives (l-mandelic, salicylic, glycolic, vitamin A and benzoyl peroxide) on timed schedule allows your skin to get acclimated. Also, relay the message that coming for treatments makes up the other 20% of their clearing progress, which includes a treatment and extractions, and strengthening the active products when necessary.
- Provide the Acne Consultation Packet to your client. Highlight the key points you feel are relevant to them. Go through the packet page by page. Confirm that your client understands the information.
Pro Tip: Once you are comfortable with the information in the Acne Consultation document, take advantage of the time during the treatment and extractions to explain some of the information to the client. Whatever information you have not covered during that time, can be reviewed after the treatment is over.

PRICE LIST

Highlight the products you recommend on the Client Price List and share that these are the products that are appropriate for their skin type and acne type. Explain that the products you have determined best for their skin should cost approximately $X. Explain why they need those products, especially how the active products work to clear acne.

SKIN ANALYSIS

Have the client lay on your treatment table, and thoroughly analyze their skin (see the Home Care Guideline for details on the list below). Assess the following:

- Do they have acne or an acne imposter?
- Skin type
- Acne type
- Acne severity
- Skin conditions that may delay treatment
- Compromised skin conditions
- Fitzpatrick type

Make a note of the above findings and record it in their Acne Client Treatment Notes.

TAKE PHOTOS

Always ask clients for permission to take their photos and reassure them that the pictures will not be shared. They will be added to their file for progress tracking. Tips for taking pictures include:

- Turn off the flash
- Turn on overhead lights
- Turn on magnifying lamp if needed
- Take 5 pictures total – 2 at 90°, 2 at 45° and one straight on

SERUM SENSITIVITY TEST

Next you will perform the Serum Sensitivity Test. You will always base your serum recommendations on the results of the Serum Sensitivity Test. Knowing your client's tolerance will guide you in making the most compatible choices for their skin. Make sure the client's home care is not too strong—more is not better. If the home care routine is too strong, the products will eventually dehydrate and/or burn the skin and will impede the clearing process. Refer to the Home Care Guideline for details on performing this test.

TREATMENT

Consider performing a peel treatment (see Clear Skin Peel Treatment and Clear Synergy Peel Treatment protocols for detailed instructions) provided that your client's skin isn't too dehydrated, dry, or barrier impaired. If the condition of their skin is not suitable for a peel treatment, consider the Acne Hydrating Treatment (see Acne Hydrating Treatment Protocol). If your client is pregnant or nursing, you should perform the Acne Hydrating Treatment.

It is helpful to explain to your client what the treatment will involve and set expectations of what to expect after the treatment. If they are receiving a Clear Skin Peel, let them know they will not wash their face or apply any active home care products that evening. They should start their full home care routine in the morning following the Weeks 1 and 2 home care instructions.

CLIENT AGREEMENT FORM

While you gather their home care products, have the client complete the Client Agreement Form. This form outlines what they are committing to for the program to be successful. Have them initial the statements and sign the form. It is recommended that you provide them with a copy of this agreement form to take with them and keep a signed copy on file.

HOME CARE DIRECTIONS

Show them each of the home care products and explain their morning and evening routine. Highlight the products they will use on the Home Care Directions Week 1-2 handout. Provide these directions with their Acne Consultation Packet.

CONCLUSION

Encourage your client to contact you if they have any questions or concerns before you see them at their next appointment in 2 weeks. Make sure they understand how to use their products properly and this will help them to be successful in their acne journey.

NEXT STEPS

- If your client had a peel treatment, advise them to start their home care routine till the following morning.
- Book appointment for 2 weeks out. If your client cannot make it in to see you for any reason, they MUST check in with you at the 2-week mark to get their routine change.
- Let them know if there are any questions or concerns about products or routine, to please contact you.
- Complete their Acne Client Treatment Notes and store their photos, labeled with the date.
- Follow up one week later to see how it's going with the client's skin routine and if they have any questions. Ask how their skin was after the first treatment.
